

Students
choosing to deal with the
short time
frame

A map to calculate the shortest possible
route on-foot for student to get to class
in time

Stokarev

Students being aware of the short time and
long distance
to classes

A warning at the start of the first class telling students how far away their next class is

Stokarev

Teachers
mitigating
the problem
themselves

Teachers posting work online for students to do outside of lectures

Stokarev

The school
addressing
the problem
head-on

Reworking the scheduling so there's a fair time frame for all students to get to class on time

Stokarev

A shuttle-tracker, for students who want to get there the fastest
way possible

Stokarev

A special pass for some students to leave classes early to get to the next one

Stokarev

Organized class time outside, which could let students be near the building their next class is in

Stokarev

Frequent
announcements to be aware of tight
scheduling

Stokarev

A map allowing students to know the locations of scooter
rentals

Stokarev

Simply attempt to schedule classes so there's more than a 20-minute window to
get to them

Stokarev

Shared classrooms to let some classes
immediately change

Stokarev

“A” weeks and “B”
weeks - where a
student alternates
between going to one
class or another (which could be an option when scheduling classes)

Stokarev