

Although university schedules are very flexible, some classes have too short of a timeframe between them, considering the distance of some buildings.